BOTH SIDES SATISFIED OVER DAM SITE BILL

Full Protection for Public Rights Provided in Changes Pleases Conservationists and Derenders.

REINTRODUCE MEASURE TODAY

Full protection for public rights in water-power sites and navigable streams is assured by changes made in the Adamson dam site bill, over which a final con-ference was held at the White House Tuesday night. Conservative members, headed by Secretary Lane left the con-ference satisfied, as did Judge Adamson and Majority Leader Underwood, who were aligned with Secretary Garrison in defense of the bill. Chairman Perris, of the Public Lands Committee, and Repre-sentative Lenroot, Republican, of the same committee, were happy yesterday for the first time since the bill was intro-

Five changes were made in the bill, and it will be reintroduced today, to be taker it will be reintroduced today, to be taken up immediately after the passage of the urgent deficiency bill.

Jurisdiction over the water-power sites is divided under the agreement. The War Department retains jurisdiction over all navigable streams, the Interior Department over nonnavigable streams in the public domain, and the Secretary of Agriculture over nonnavigable streams.

Agriculture over nonnavigable streams in the forest reserve. The repeal section, which conservationists feared would work to repeal the authorizations under which reclamation, irrigation, and municipal water supply projects are operating, is changed so that it will apply only to water-power projects not in the public domain.

The Secretary of War at the termina-tion of the fifty-year lease provided in the bill may make a new set of regu-lations for the operating company, fixing conditions, charges and prices for serv-ice. The Secretary may let the project to a new company, or take it over by nurchase.

The government will be required to pay only the original cost for land purchased from government, State or county, but for land purchased from private indi-viduals a "fair valuation" must be paid. Another clause authorizes the President to withdraw from the public domain at his discretion and transfer to the jurisdiction of the Secertary of War any land necessary to complete a power site.

Messrs. Tutelman Bros., one of the largest, if not the largest, concerns in the United States making Dresses and Silk and Cotton Waists, closed out their entire stock on hand at a price averaging 40 and 50 cents on the dollar. These high-class makers enjoy an enviable reputation as designers of the eleverest styles in women's ready-to-wear apparel produced in America. The wealth of materials, the unlimited assortments of new models, the beauty of the fabrics, the excellent workmanship, the bewitching charm that distinguishes every garment in this stupendous purchase, gives it an importance that overshadows every similar event ever presented to the women of Washington!

You can get some idea of what this sale means to you when we tell you that the sale prices hardly cover the cost of materials alone. Such advantages, coming right in midseason, when the demand for cool, charming summer frocks and waists is at its height, will naturally arouse the keenest buying enthusiasm and pack this store to the doors with value-wise women.

In view of the fact we are selling these garments far below the regular wholesale cost we must limit the quantity to each buyer, in order to prevent dealers from buying them, and to give all our customers an equal chance to share the amazing values. So we say: Not more than four Silk Waists, three Cotton Waists and four Wash Dresses to any one buyer. TERMS OF SALE-None sent C. O.
